Meeting Description: Activity: 1.1.3: Build capacity of ATO and other key relevant actors to collect, analyze and utilize the data in the system to produce real time periodic reports (quarterly, semiannual, annual).

1. Background and introduction:

The Agriculture Transformation Office (ATO) is supporting the Government of Tanzania in strengthening monitoring, evaluation, and digital data systems across the agriculture sector, including livestock and fisheries, as part of implementing the Agriculture Master Plan (AMP) 2050.

The Ministry of Livestock and Fisheries (MLF) has made notable progress in developing a digital Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) System to enhance performance tracking, data management, and evidence-based decision-making. The system is expected to support implementation of the AMP 2050 Results Framework, contribute to reporting under the CAADP Kampala Declaration (2026 - 2035), and improve sector accountability.

Youth unemployment and underemployment remain significant challenges in Tanzania. At the same time, the agriculture sector offers substantial potential for creating productive, sustainable, and inclusive work opportunities for young people. Beyond primary production, young people can participate across agricultural value chains as entrepreneurs, employees, producers, processors, aggregators, traders, input suppliers, service providers, transporters, and digital service providers.

The Youth in Work agenda focuses on expanding pathways through which young people can access, create, and sustain meaningful and productive work opportunities. This requires deliberate efforts to identify sectors and value chains with high potential for youth employment, strengthen the enabling environment for youth participation, and support young people to transition into sustainable employment and enterprise opportunities.

The livestock and fisheries sectors present significant opportunities for youth employment and entrepreneurship. However, there is a need for stronger systems to identify, track, measure, and report on the work opportunities being created and accessed by young people. Without reliable and timely data, it is difficult to understand the scale and nature of youth participation, measure employment outcomes, assess the sustainability of work opportunities, and use evidence to improve program and investments.

Strengthening Monitoring, Evaluation, and Learning (MEL) systems is therefore essential to support the Youth in Work agenda. A strengthened digital system will enable stakeholders to collect, manage, analyze, and utilize data on youth participation and work outcomes in real time. This will support the identification of employment pathways, tracking of jobs and work opportunities created, and measurement of the quality and sustainability of youth employment outcomes.

The intervention will strengthen the capacity of relevant institutions and stakeholders to effectively use data and digital systems to monitor Youth in Work outcomes. This will support the generation of timely and high-quality quarterly, semi-annual, and annual reports, while improving evidence-based decision-making, accountability, program design, and resource allocation.

2. Main Objective

To strengthen systems and institutional capacity to identify, create, track, analyze, and utilize data on youth work opportunities and employment outcomes to support informed decision-making and the expansion of sustainable work opportunities for youth and you women

3. EXPECTED OUTPUTS

a) Youth in Work indicators are integrated within the M&E system to track youth participation, employment, self-employment, entrepreneurship, enterprise development, and other work opportunities created across relevant sectors and value chains for youth and young women;

b) Capacity-building sessions conducted for relevant institutions and stakeholders on collecting, managing, analyzing, and reporting data related to youth work opportunities and employment outcomes;

c) Strengthened institutional capacity to identify and track youth work opportunities and generate timely real-time and periodic reports on youth employment outcomes;

d) Improved functionality, reliability, scalability, and sustainability of data and monitoring systems to support effective tracking of youth work creation and employment opportunities;

e) Enhanced data-driven decision-making through timely and high-quality information on the number, type, quality, and sustainability of work opportunities, accessed or created by young people.

4. EXPECTED IMPACT

1. The intervention will contribute to strengthening the Youth in Work ecosystem by improving the ability of institutions and stakeholders to identify, monitor, and support pathways to productive and sustainable work opportunities for young people.

2. The strengthened system will enable stakeholders to better understand where and how work opportunities are being created, which young people are accessing these opportunities, and the extent to which these opportunities contribute to sustainable employment, income generation, entrepreneurship, and economic empowerment.

3. Ultimately, the intervention will support improved planning, investment, program design, and resource allocation towards interventions that demonstrate strong potential for youth work creation.

4. By strengthening the use of evidence and data in decision-making, the initiative will contribute to expanding sustainable and inclusive work opportunities for young people and strengthening their participation in Tanzania's agricultural and broader economic transformation.
